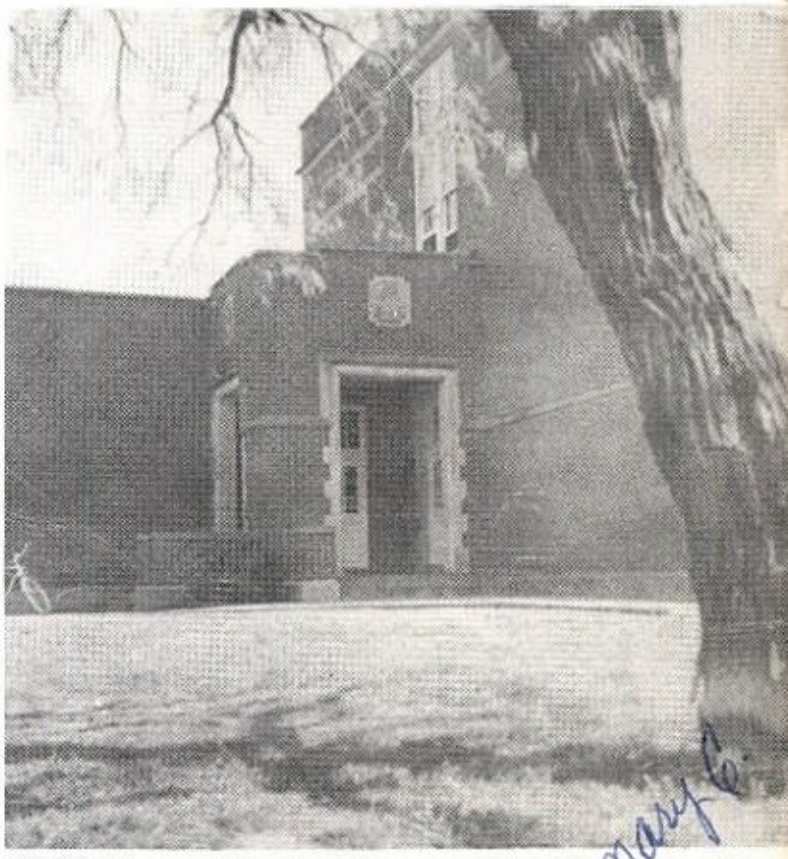
ADVERTISEMENTS

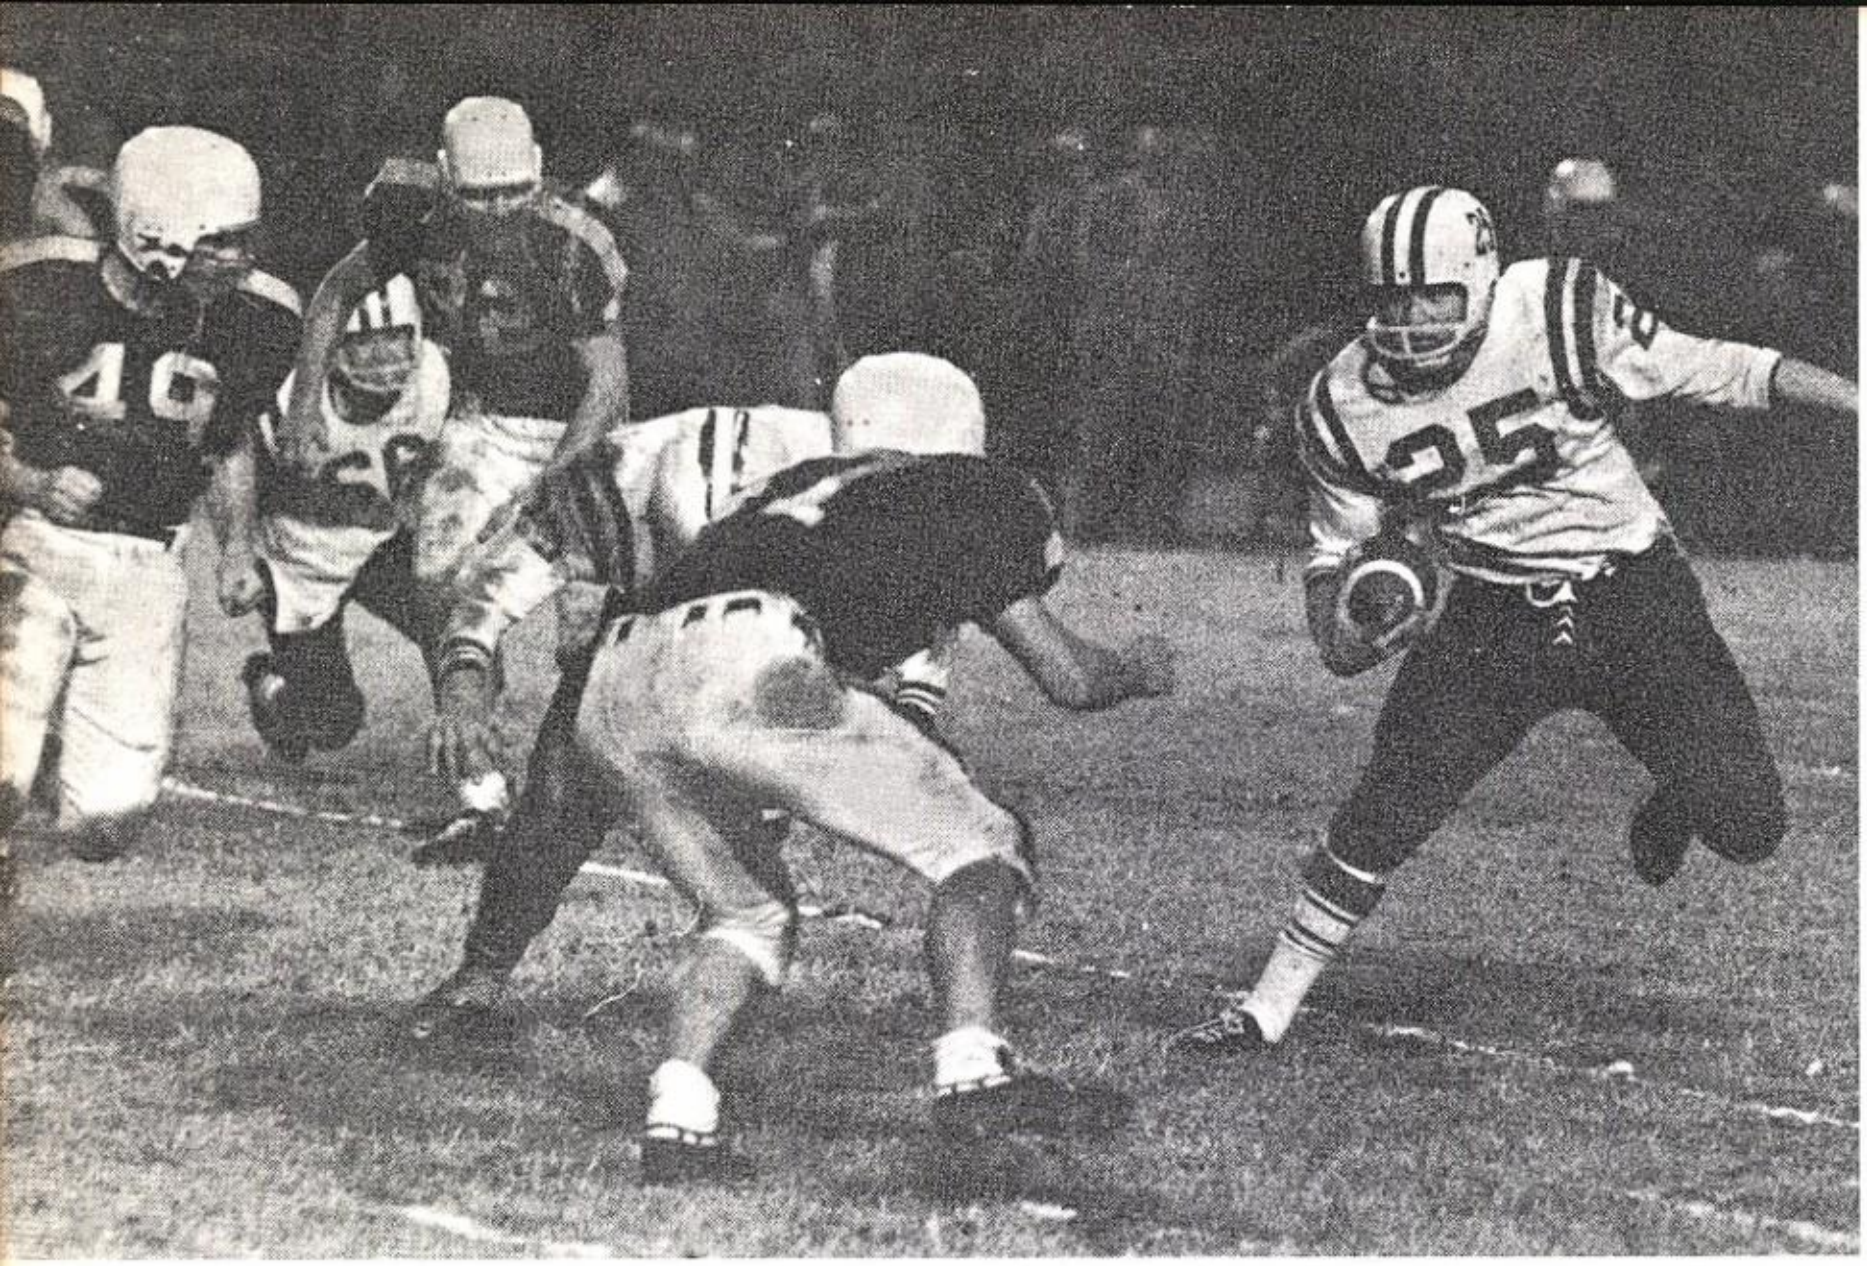
1959-60 at S H S

In the following activity section, as well as throughout this annual, we have attempted to present in chronological manner the events which flavored the school year 1959-1960.

Turning rapidly through the first section, you will find most of the major events recorded in seasonal order.

Inadequacy would seemingly dog the footsteps of any group that attempted to note those varied activities of a school made possible by personal labor, school finance, or individual graciousness; consequently we sincerely hope that these pages unfold an authentic --and perhaps nostalgic--impression of this year's events--those apprehensive first days, those rousing pep rallies, the enduring friendships, challenging sports, and the final attainment of at least a few morsels of formal knowledge.





During the State Championship game, MARK HINSON, capitalizing on a block thrown by RONNIE HARRISON, quickly alters his course and charges on down the field.

This fall the Bulldogs, supported by scores of enthusiastic fans, accomplished their goal--winning another state championship, the fourth in five years.

That goal was reached! Realizing that each victory brought them closer to the championship spurred the Bulldogs to fight on determinedly until they met another team of Bulldogs and proved themselves superior by crushing Brady's hopes and bringing home the coveted title of State AA Champions of 1959.

Top: The Bulldogs and girlfriends exchange ribbons before the game with their traditional foe, Anson. Bottom: Pep Squad and fans give the Bulldogs a rousing send-off.

Cheerleaders JUDY MILLS and ELSIE MEDLIN urge the Bulldogs on to victory before the boys board the bus to travel to Quanah for the Bi-District game.

Cheerleaders ELIZABETH BOSSE, GLORIA BLACKWELL, JUDY MILLS, ELSIE MEDLIN, and JUDITH THOMAS execute a pom-pom drill during a Friday morning pep rally.

Fall - and Victory

Mighty mite CHARLIE HELMER crashes through rough Brady Bulldog opposition while TOM LOVVORN offers support.

The Bulldogs battle to the finish when they trample the Anson Tigers, 35-0.

BURT, JUDY, WENDELL, WANDA, and DUANE look on as SUPT. L. W. JOHNSON congratulates ELSIE after crowning her Homecoming Queen.

Home in October

Minds of ex-students turned to fond memories of their alma mater when SHS celebrated a homecoming for the first time.

After registration, visiting, and a hamburger supper, prepared by the Class of '60, the close of a memorable day arrived as the Bulldogs played Anson, remembered by former students as Stamford's number one opponent. During half-time activities, Superintendent L. W. Johnson crowned Elsie Meldin as Homecoming Queen; runners-up, Judy Mills and Wanda Childress, presented Elsie with white mums and a royal robe.

Highlighting Saturday's activities was a noon barbeque at the football stadium, followed by a history of Stamford High School, presented by Olive McDougle, and a business meeting, conducted by temporary chairman, Brad Rowland; those present elected L. E. Million, Jr. as President of the Ex-Student's Association.

The real purpose of such a gathering, reuniting old friends, was accomplished Saturday afternoon as class reunions were held in homes, in class rooms, at Nat's Cafe, and at the Country Club.

As every occasion must end, this one closed late Saturday when good-byes were said until next year at which time the words, "Do you remember when---?" will again resound through the halls of Stamford High.

MRS. BARRON LINDSEY and MRS. BERNARD BUIE, mothers of seniors, serve hamburgers to ex-students as they get into the swing of homecoming.

The Saturday noon barbeque which preceded the business meeting was a huge success.

COACH CHUCK MOSER compares football in the north with football in the south as MR. JOHNSON, MR. and MRS. SIMPSON, CAROL MOSER, JUDY SCURLOCK, and MRS. WARTES listen attentively.

ROY DON SCONCE and JUDY SCURLOCK are crowned Football King and Queen.

Winter Brings Celebration

Another State Championship--the fourth in five years--carried the football season into winter, and the annual Football Banquet became that season's outstanding event.

Pep Squad members toiled hard to make this an unprecedented occasion. Place cards were footballs; favors were miniature pictures of the football team; and the room decorations were crowns suspended from window streamers. A large white papier-mache football and blue crown centered the head table.

Coach Chuck Moser, Abilene's newly appointed Public School Athletic Director, was the guest speaker. He inspired everyone at the banquet "to try" harder at everything he does.

The highlight of the banquet was the crowning of the Football King and Queen. Pep Squad president and toastmistress, Judy Scurlock, crowned Roy Don Sconce king, and the tri-captains of the mighty Bulldog team--Charlie Helmer, Tom Lovvorn, and Bobby Gamblin--crowned Judy Scurlock queen. They then presented gifts of appreciation to the coaches and the fourth State Championship trophy to Superintendent L. W. Johnson.

The program included a medley of songs by the Senior Girl's Octet and selections by the S.H.S. Off-Beats, who also provided dinner music.

OFF-BEATS--Donnie Hill, Ronnie Berry, Ward Hinds, Victor Blackburn, Jeffrey Wofford, Billy Reese, and Douglas Rosenquist--play "Angel Unaware" on the program at the banquet.

SENIOR GIRLS OCTET--Nancy Kennedy, Patti Miller, Glenda Lindsey, Martha Holland, Jane Smith, Sue Southerland, Wanda Childress, and Judy Hughes--sing a medley of songs at the banquet.

A few of the guests--Coach and Mrs. Munnerlyn; Coach and Mrs. Anderson; Dr. and Mrs. Metz; Mr. Nauert; and Smitty, the boy's chartered bus driver--enjoyed the food and fellowship at the banquet.

CHARLIE HELMER, COACH WARTES, TOM LOVVORN, and BOBBY GAMBLIN congratulate each other after the successful football season.

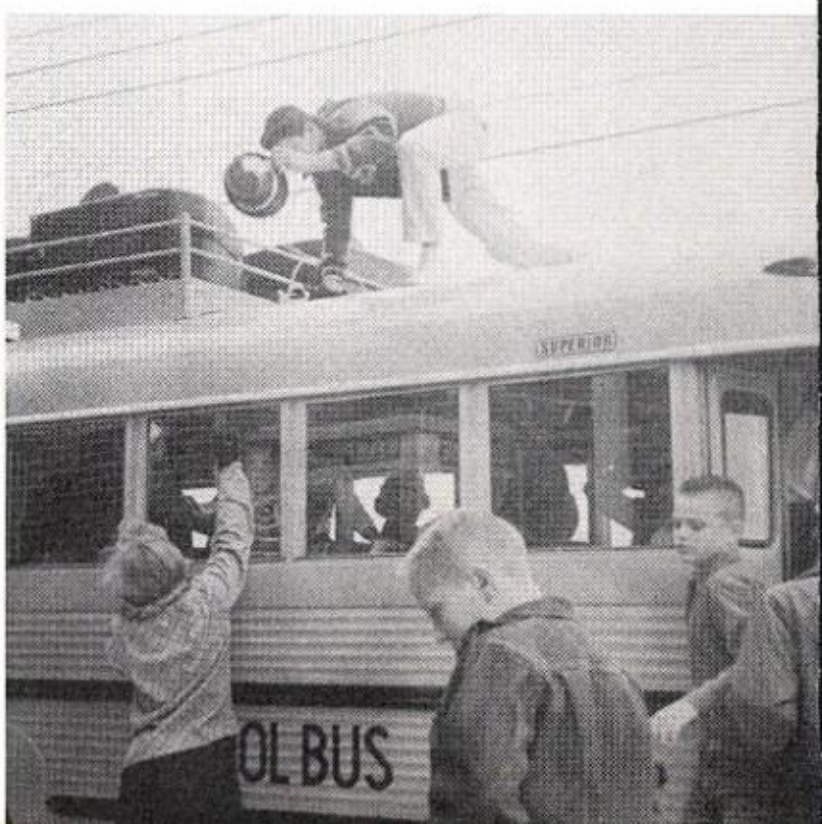
FOOTBALL

Winter brought rewards to the Stamford team; after working long hours every day for years, the 1959 State Championship Bulldogs received their coveted trophies, the blue and white jackets. Coach Wartes presented the B-team sweaters along with the A-team jackets; the B-team established an enviable record.

BAND

The Stamford High School Band presented half time performances at football games across the state during this fall and winter, and the quality of this organization's discipline and ability is a credit to the school. The splendid artistry of the band members won some desirable prizes.

GAIL YOUNGQUIST, DONNIE HILL, GIL ALBERTS, MARK HOLCOMB, DENNIS CAMPBELL load the band bus for a football game.



CAROLYN LOOP, TEE SELMON, TANIS SMITH, KAY LOVVORN, SCARLET BERRY, and BERNIE CRAIG walked to the band's practice marching field.

WANDA CHILDRESS, BLANCHE HANEY, JUDY HUGHES, and JANE SMITH, twirlers, took part in many varied half time performances.

STUDIES

With mid-term raising its ugly head and admonishing us about all the facts which we had overlooked since September, the entire student body plunged into deep concentration to prepare for semester finals.

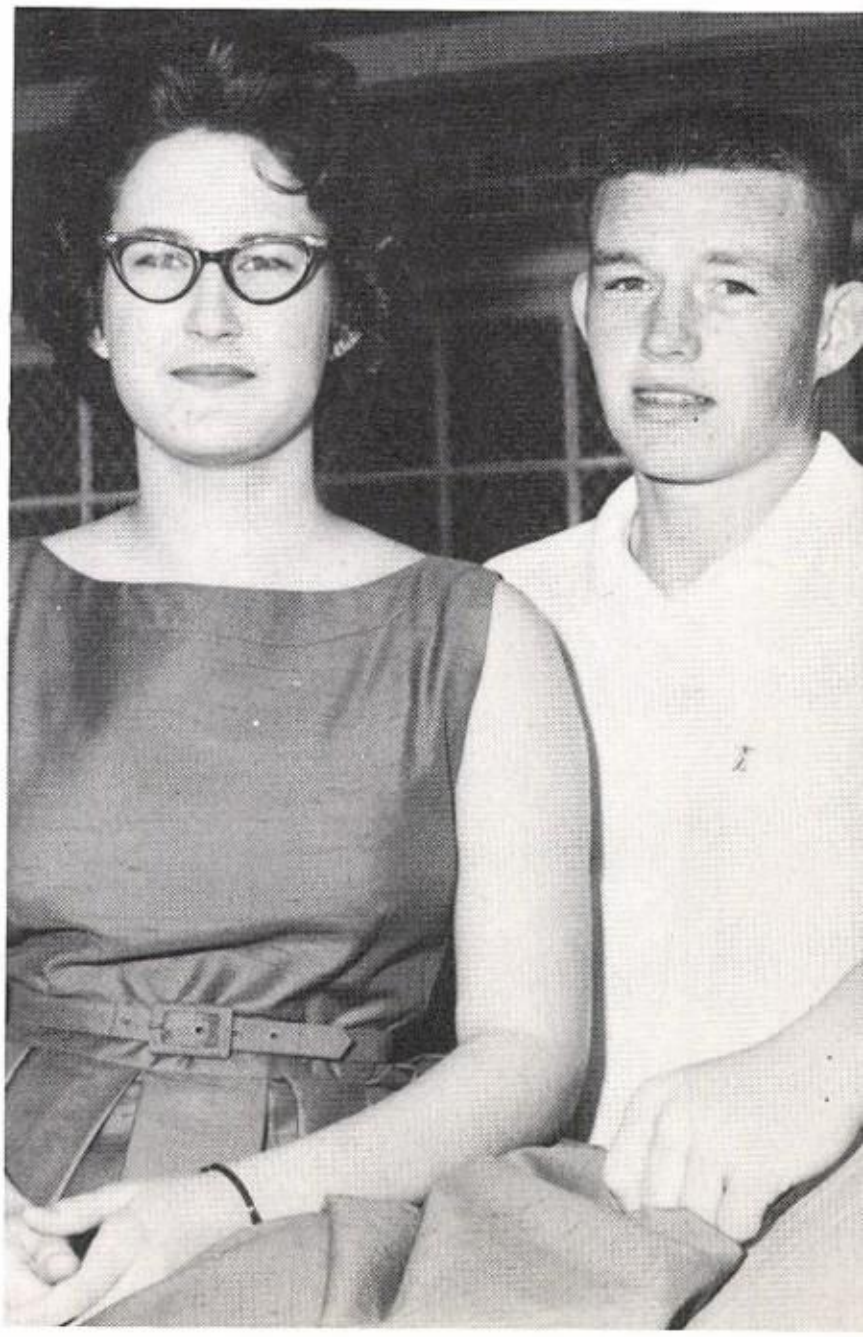
JUDY SCURLOCK, SCOTTIE PRYOR, and PAT BONDS study diligently to prepare for mid-term tests.

Mr. and Miss Bulldog

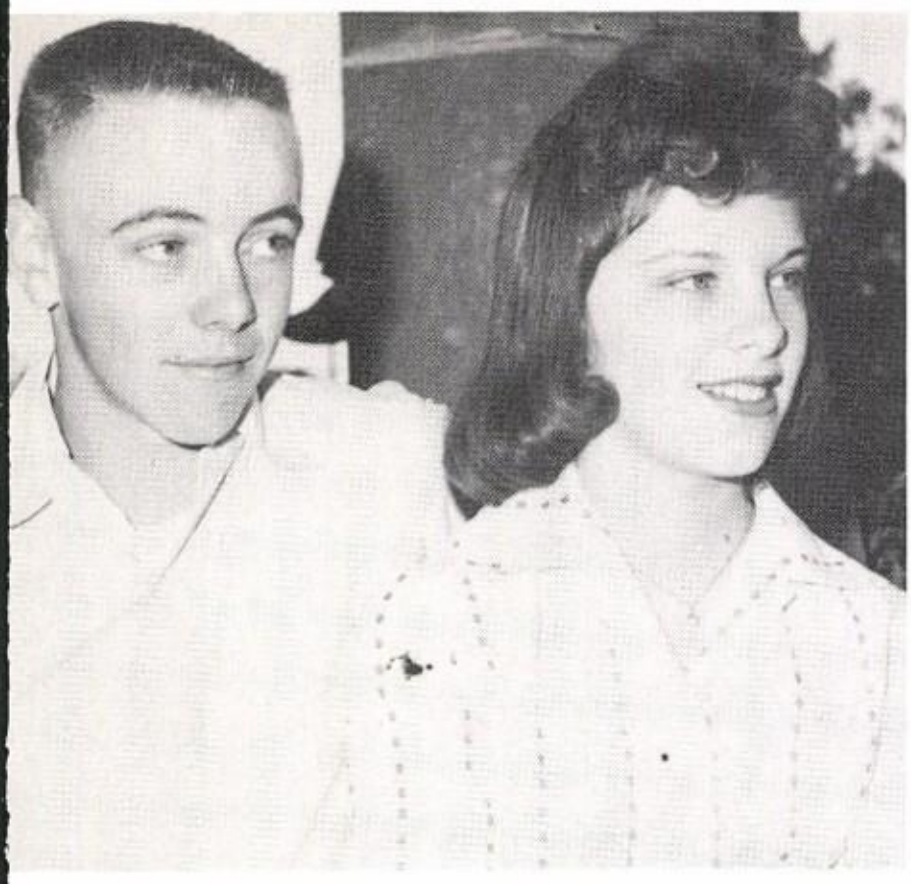
During the months of December, January, February, and March, the title of Mr. or Miss Bulldog was bestowed on one boy and one girl from each of the four high school classes respectively.

At the close of each of these months, there was a Student Council meeting in which the members chose by majority vote the two people who best represented one class in personality, grades, and appearance.

Santa brought many surprises in December, but the smiles of Glenda Lindsey and Wayland Shurley, who are Seniors, indicate that they think he bestowed an especially nice one on them when they found they had been elected as the first Mr. and Miss Bulldog for the 1959-1960 school year.



The New Year left fond memories for Sharon Williams and Larry Hodgkinson since they were elected from the Junior Class as Mr. and Miss Bulldog for January.



The beauty of spring was unfurled for Joe Ray Scurlock and Ann Hansen because they were chosen Mr. and Miss Bulldog for March from the Freshman Class.

Cupid chose well in his selection of Joanna Moudy and Roger Tipton as Mr. and Miss Bulldog for February from the Sophomore Class.

Chosen From Each Class

The runners-up were the following: December - Carol Mangrum, Delton Jones; January - Carole Acker, Lance Griggs; March - Bernie Craig, Ferdie Walker; and February - Scottie Pryor, Clifford Loughmiller.

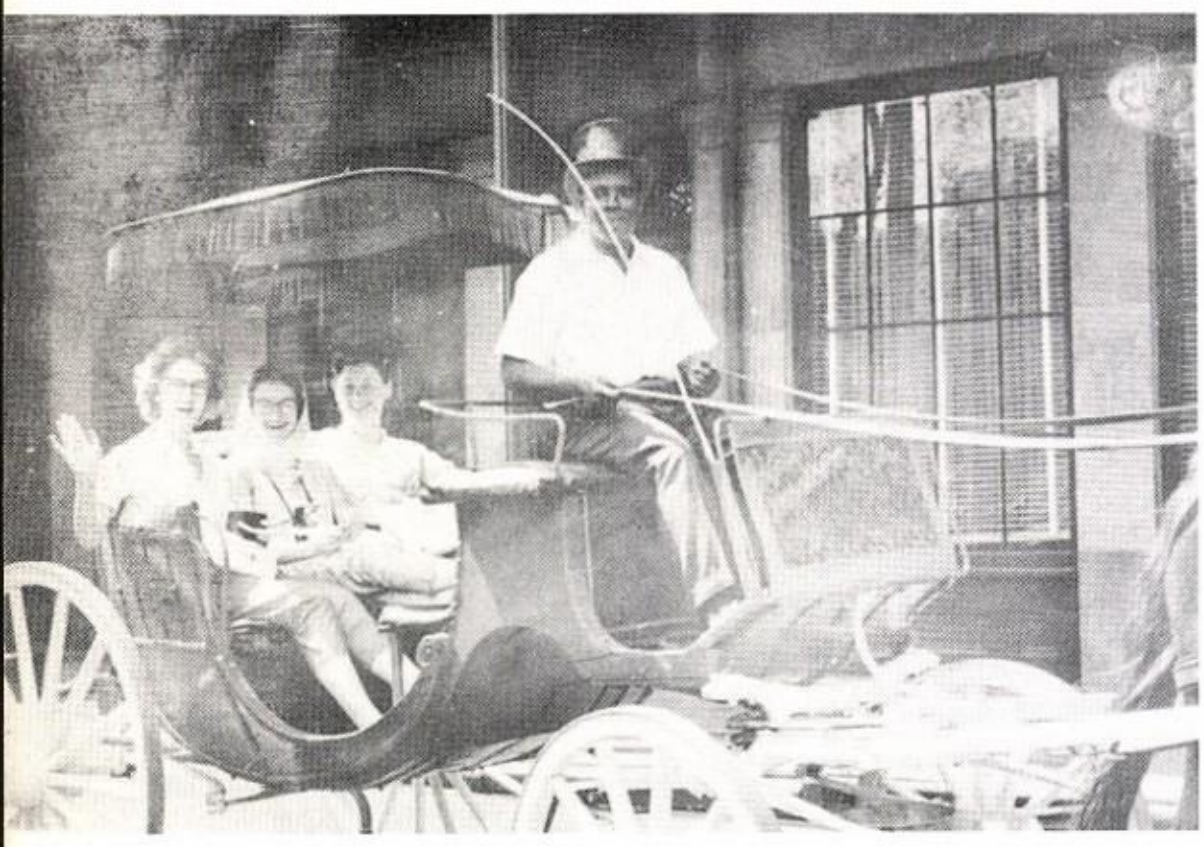
April in New Orleans

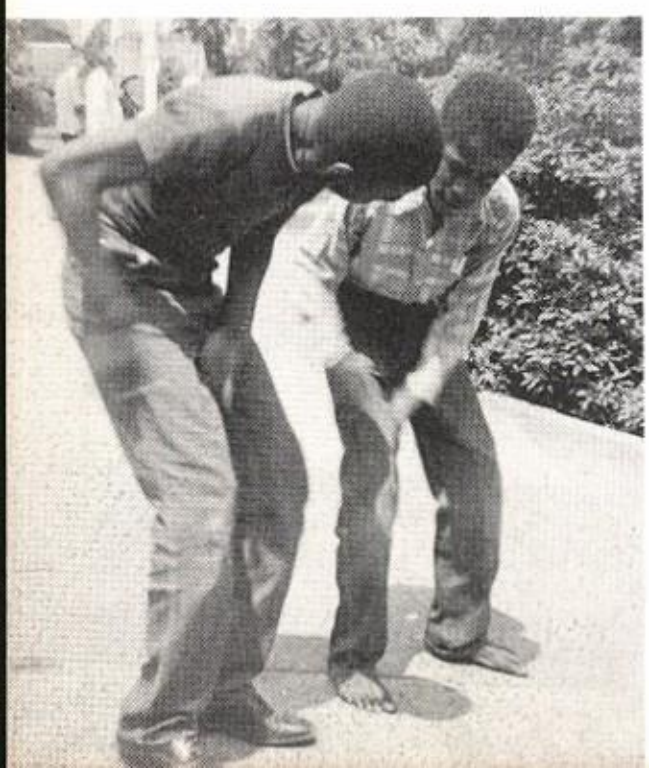


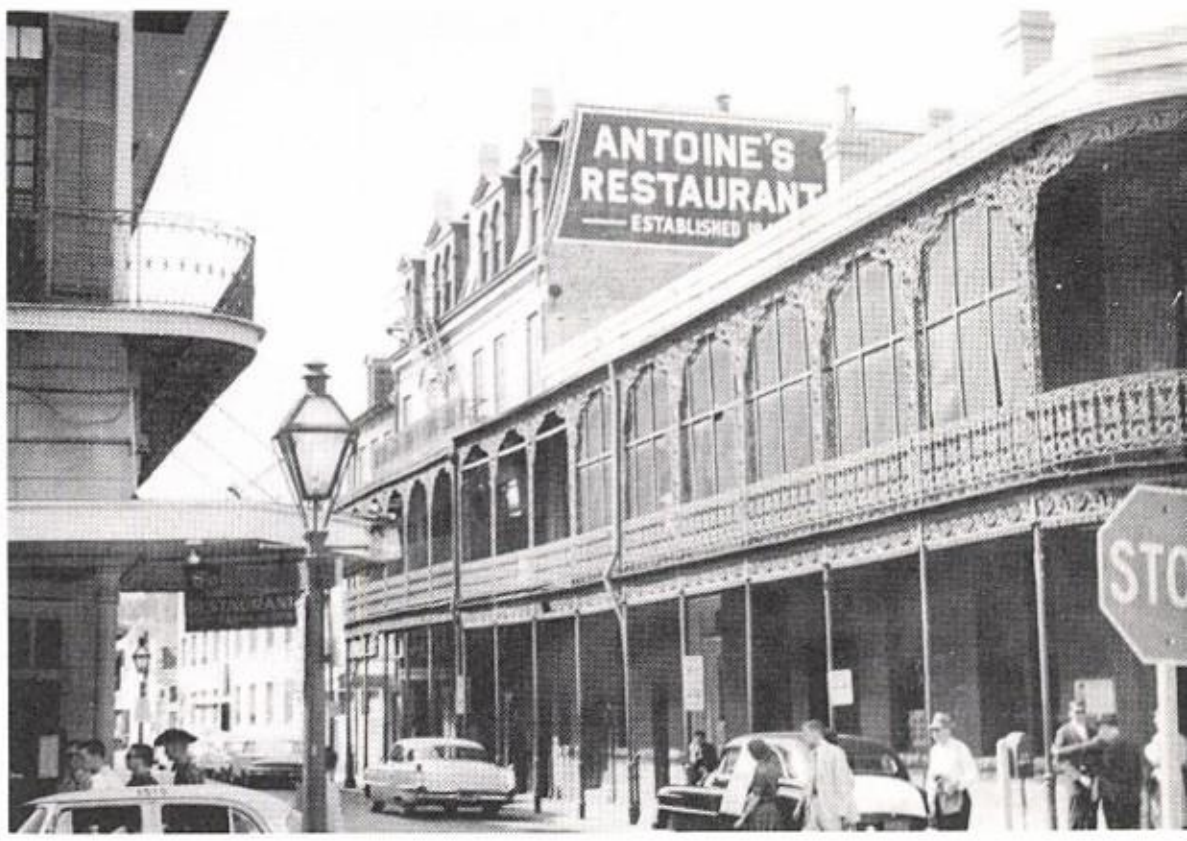
Judy Weeks, Carol Mangrum, and Phyllis Ake enjoy a romantic ride in a hack through the streets of the French Quarters.

Four couples -- the Mayes, Simpsons, Medlins, and the Lovvorns -- consented to be sponsors for the 1960 Senior Trip to New Orleans, and they, along with Smitty and Denton, the drivers, were affable, conscientious companions.

After seven months of toil, the seniors embarked for New Orleans on April 13, 1960. Reaching Baton Rouge on the 14th, the group ate breakfast and visited the capitol before leaving for New Orleans, where they arrived in time to go to the Blue Room of the Roosevelt Hotel. During the following two days each senior learned why New Orleans has always been a fabled city. The mighty Mississippi. The bustle and romance of Canal Street. The flamboyance of Bourbon Street at night will always be a part of each traveler's memory.

Two colored shoe shine boys do a song and dance, New Orleans style.





Many of the seniors enjoyed the famous cuisine at Antoine's, established in 1840.

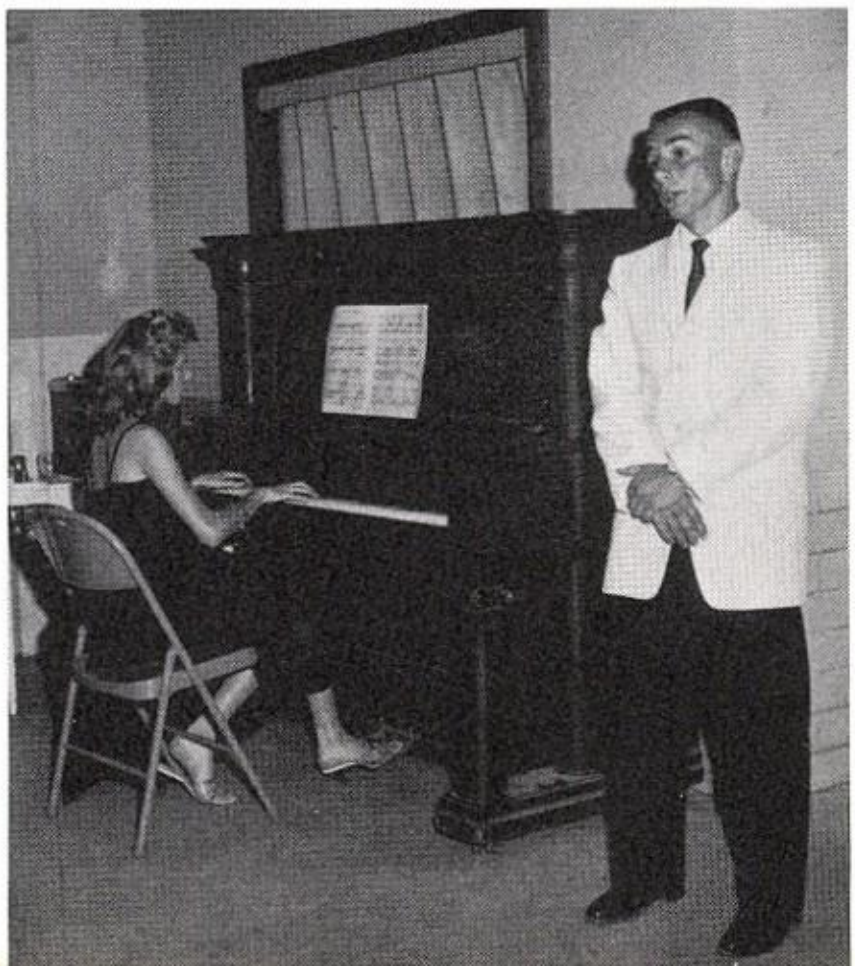
Junior Senior Banquet . . .

This part of the festive decorations, which set the atmosphere for the banquet, was the product of junior class industry.

Late in spring the annual banquet was presented by the Junior class honoring the Seniors. "Isle of Dreams," suggestive of our newest state, assured Seniors of a warm "Aloha!"

Following Betty Wisener's invocation, the food, from fried chicken to cherry pie, was enjoyed by all.

Don Newquist, Junior president, welcomed guests, and Pat Bonds, Senior president, responded. High school groups rendered musical numbers; Patti Miller and Nancy Kennedy, respectively, related the will and prophecy of the Seniors. Advising Juniors and Seniors, Rev. Byron Bryant delivered the address, "Wind and Hurricane"; the benediction was given by Dr. H. B. Haterius.



"The Road to Mandalay" was beautifully sung by Jimmy Harkins as a part of the musical program.

Students and guests were inspired by an address given by Rev. Byron Byrant.

. . . Spring Highlight

The long-awaited moment arrives -- Duane Lindsey crowns Janyth Holcomb as Basketball Queen.

Juniors and Seniors seem to enjoy the delicious food.

Learning

In the classrooms of Stamford High School a fine faculty is always at work beside an outstanding student body. Endeavoring to teach or learn, both these groups continue to learn.

This section of the Bulldog contains the teachers and the pupils. When learning ceases to take place, Stamford High School will have failed in its function. Thus, we have titled this section "Learning."

Here Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are seen indulging in one of their innumerable mutual pleasures--reading together. English majors, both--their preferences often lead them to the classics, in which they frequently exult over the subtle humor detected therein.

Act well your part; there all the honor lies.
-Edgar Lee Masters

An enviable record of comprehensive service executed with quiet efficiency and professional dignity--such is the praiseworthy career of Mr. Leroy W. Johnson, retiring superintendent of the Stamford Public Schools. Following thirty-six consecutive years as administrator of the system--thirty-two as superintendent--he brings to a close an epic in the educational history of the community.

Under Mr. Johnson's astute leadership the academic program of this area has steadily progressed. A retrospective study reveals that in the early 1920's the physical assets of the system were valued at approximately $200,000; now the figure totals $1,200,000. Then there were thirty square miles in the district; now there are one hundred and thirty-one sections. All or part of ten districts have been added. Curriculum expansions and elevated standards now require the services of sixty staff members.

A long-range building expansion program--the erection of Reynolds Street Elementary School, Oliver Street Elementary School and Cafetorium, the Home Economics cottage, the high school cafeteria, the Vocational Agriculture building, the gymnasium, and the enlarged football stadium--is visible evidence of the school's growth. These symbols are monuments to the man who constantly envisaged and directed an educational program commensurate with the demands of the rapidly changing times.

During his tenure of service Mr. Johnson has presented diplomas to 2,500 graduates, many of whom have distinguished themselves in higher institutions of learning and in their own chosen careers.

A phenomenal feat during those thin years when money was had at a premium was the ability of this sagacious business man to avert a situation which in most schools was the rule, not the exception: payment of teachers' salaries in script. Never once did the Stamford teachers fail to receive their valid checks; never once were they forced to discount their vouchers.

Notable, too, has been the astoundingly small turnover in the faculty--an evidence of faith and harmony among teachers and executives. Frequently the transition from one school year to the next has been made with no personnel change. Tending to strengthen a well-organized regime, this constancy has promoted a stability in the system and a security among its faculty, whose pride in accomplishment has stimulated their best. That these well-qualified, experienced teachers have chosen to remain here, in spite of their opportunities to command higher salaries elsewhere, is indicative of their respect and admiration for the standards themselves and the chief executive who moulded them.

An underlying conscientiousness and a profound sincerity attained by but few are among Mr. Johnson's salient intangible trademarks. By-passing none of the vexatious details necessarily accompanying his numerous responsibilities, he has at all times evidenced a fair and careful weighing of all facets in all matters. In so doing there has been foisted no deception, no evasiveness, no equivocation, no slight misrepresentation; rather, an honest, straight-forward, upright approach to whatever was commanded. What greater encomium?

Dedicated both to his profession and his standards, Mr. Johnson has been a stimulus to the myriads who have passed his way. Nor are these reticent in their avowals of appreciation. His influence is indelible. Indeed he has acted well his part; there all the honor lies.

L. W. Johnson, Superintendent

J. W. Simpson, Principal

MR. SIMPSON gives the morning announcements.

Mr. Simpson, the man with all the answers, has served as our principal for four years. No matter the problem taken to him, he will give it his earnest attention and render valuable assistance. In addition to his work as principal, he is Pep Squad Sponsor, advance ticket salesman for football games, and, although he does not teach, an excellent mathmetician.

T. R. Tinsley, Supervisor

Fulfilling one of his duties as supervisor, MR. TINSLEY confers with MISS BURCH.

Having spent his 41 years of teaching in the local school system, Mr. Tinsley and his science classes have become legend. His thoroughness of subject matter, complemented by subtle humor, clever repartee, and genuine interest, is responsible for the alertness necessary for eager, ambitious, successful students, many of whom, because of his inspiration, have made their own valuable places in the field of science.

Principal of Stamford High School for many years, Mr. Tinsley has served as curriculum supervisor since 1951, and is responsible for the excellency of work done in each of the five schools.

The vocational department--offering typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, agriculture, and homemaking--has five teachers and about 100 students. Although the number of credits earned in these courses that can count toward graduation is limited, the courses are popular. In typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, and homemaking the girls prepare for future jobs and homes. General science, biology, chemistry, and physics compose the science curriculum. The science field is rapidly growing and has limitless opportunities. Library Has 5600 Books

A quiet, busy place, the library is used by an average of 500 people weekly who need it for reading, research, and study. Approximately 400 books are issued to students weekly. The library contains 5,600 volumes, and several hundred were added during the year. A wide variety of pamphlets and periodicals, covering a wide range of current topics, guides students in their various research.

The gracious librarian, Mrs. Johnson, along with her staff of high school girls, runs the Stamford library with efficiency and quiet control.

To quote one student, "I like the quiet, attractive surroundings of the library where I can study without interruption."

The librarians work each period doing the various duties assigned them such as checking out books, dusting and straightening books, preparing the bulletin board, and typing cards for new books.

"May I help you?" inquires MRS. JOHNSON

Familiar Faces Around S H S

Familiar faces around school are those of the custodian, the janitors, and the cafeteria staff. These are the people to whom we owe thanks for a clean, warm building on that cold January morning, dependable transportation, and the nourishing meals offered at noon.

These services are sincerely appreciated by the students; without them Stamford High School could not function properly.

HAMP SKILES is in charge of maintenance of the school building and buses.

RALPH CASTELLANO is janitor for the high school building.

Senior Class Officers

Election of a group of senior class officers is an important task to perform. Officers must be hard-working, industrious students who are willing to work for the class. The Class of 1960 was extremely fortunate to have elected five students who did their individual jobs with smooth efficiency and self-control. Maintaining discipline in class meetings, and at dues-paying time, when tempers ran high, never shook the equilibrium of the patient officers.

The senior class officers of '60 were President, Pat Bonds; Vice-President, John Bill Oman; Secretary, Judy Hughes; Treasurer, Glenda Lindsey; Reporter, Jane Smith.

Class of '60

The Fabulous Fifties will always be significant to the Class of 1960 as the decade in which we passed through grade school and high school in Stamford.

In 1956 a group of scared freshmen entered Stamford High School. That year Stamford won its second state championship in football; and we were a part of this team, whether on the football squad, in the band, or simply in the school room. Since then we have taken each succeeding position in the organization which is SHS, and at the close of the Fabulous Fifties--three years, two state championships, and a high school career later--we are anticipating a momentous change; we are to be graduates! Look out, World!

Junior Class Officers

The juniors were already aspiring toward their senior trip with the paper drives and the collection of monthly dues when they ordered their senior rings in March. After the seniors left on their trip, the juniors presented more of their money-making schemes; with the junior plays, they earned money for the Junior-Senior Banquet, given for the seniors in May.

With these officers--Don Newquist, President; Billy Edd Phillips, Vice President; Jackie Weaver, Secretary-Treasurer; Sarah Carlton, Reporter; Leon Thane and Jerry Moritz, Sergeants-at-Arms--and Mr. Nauert, head sponsor, the juniors proved themselves industrious young people, capable of attaining any goal they might choose for themselves.

With one year of high school already under our belt, we came to school this year with an eagerness to learn which was unparalleled in our experience. We may have been "green freshmen" last year, but now we were full of confidence.

Our class has already begun to distinguish itself in the long panorama of Stamford students. Our band pupils have brought new honors to their organization, and many of our number are distinguished scholastically. In short, we feel that the Class of 1962 is a bright star on the horizon.

As leaders for this year our class chose Roger Tipton, Pres.; Clifford Loughmiller, Vice Pres.; Carol Ann Payne, Sec. Treas.; Jimmy Harkins, Reporter; Fred Hudson and Charlie Terrel, Sgts. - at - Arms.

Dog House Attracts Students

Any Friday or Saturday night will find students of Stamford and surrounding towns taking part in the fun and fellowship offered at the Dog House. Shuffleboard, television, dancing, ping-pong, pool, table games, or just visiting are some of the interesting things offered at this recreation center.

Governing the activities of the youth center is the Dog House Council. This group of officers and class representatives is chosen by the council of the preceding year. This year the council has been successful in arousing the interest of the junior high group.

While Mrs. Hall looks on, Mark Holcomb and Kay Goodloe register at the desk.

Fine Arts Studies Impressionism

Fine Arts sponsors: Mrs. Lynn Gillespie and Mrs. Frank Thomas

Fine Arts opened the '59-'60 season with its annual President's Dinner honoring the club's new president, Judy Mills, and the new members. Outstanding programs were produced following this year's theme - "Impressionism in Music, Art, and Drama."

The club received many honors at the District Convention in Stephenville; both the yearbook and the scrapbook received first place awards.

A festive Christmas party was held in December at the Home Economics Cottage in memory of the composer, Edward McDowell.

In the spring a group of members took part in the Music Festival at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. Later in the spring an impressive year of work was climaxed by Open House at the Central Christian Church followed by a reception in the home of Judy Mills.

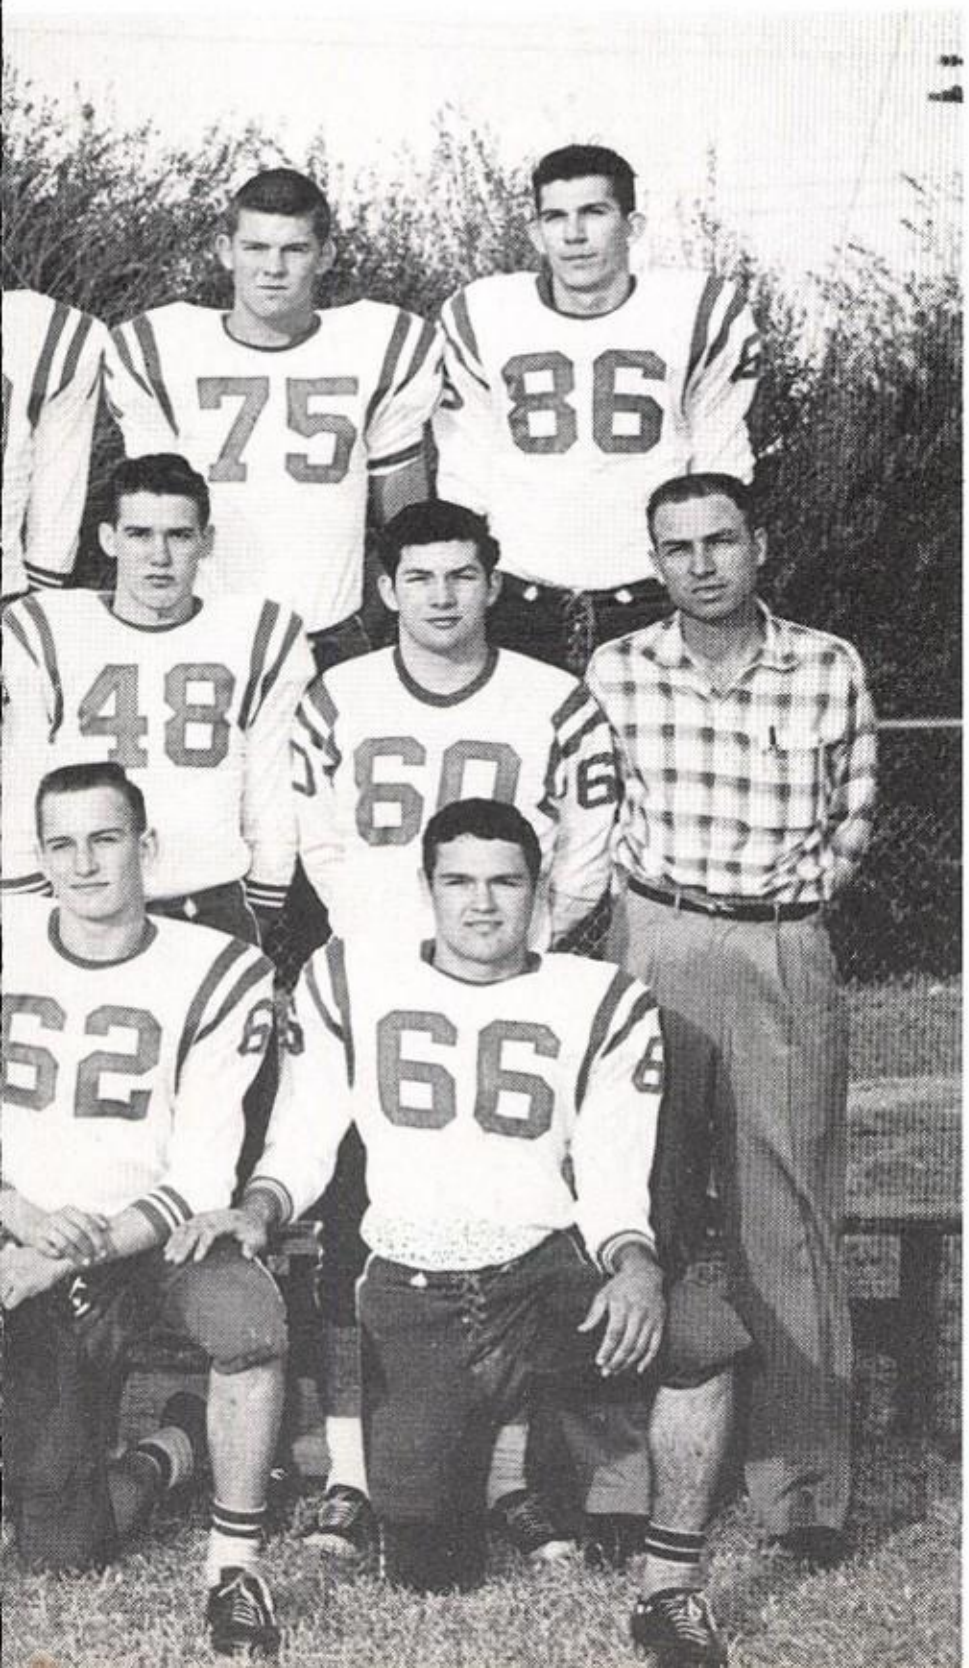
DO IT AGAIN !

Fourth Time In Five Years



After completing an impressive round of district play, the Bulldogs knocked the Quanah Indians from the playoffs by winning 43-18. Next to become the victim of the "Mighty Bulldogs" was undefeated, untied Cisco. A powerful Stamford line proved too much for an inspired stubborn Lobo eleven. The Bulldogs won 32-22.

In quarter-finals Stamford met the state's highest scoring team, Denver City; Bulldogs blanked the Mustangs 14-0. Grabbing their 25th victory in a row, the Bulldogs slammed into the AA state finals by downing a fired-up team of Olney Cubs 15-7.

In a real battle for AA crown, the Stamford Bulldogs met the Brady Bulldogs. This game brought the Stamford Bulldogs their fourth football crown in the past five years, an achievement that few teams in the state of Texas can boast !

In District 6AA Race

The Bulldogs, getting a late start because of a long football season, came through again with an unusually good basketball team. Although placing second in district by losing the last game to Anson, an ancient rival, the Bulldogs played excellent ball and ended the season with a 10-4 record.

Bill "Cotton" Thompson was the spark plug for the Bulldogs all season with 246 points in 14 games. During his high school career he has racked up many honors. Last year he was all-district, all-region, and honorable mention all-state! This year he earned another all-district position. Cotton received able assistance from his senior teammates--Wendell, Tom, Duane, Wayne, Billy, and Wayland. The juniors were well represented by the superb playing of Wayne Bates and Larry Hodgkinson.

Although this year's boys had no exceptionally superior ability, they established themselves by working hard under the direction of Coach O. M. Isbell.
